Chris is a board-certified appellate specialist with nearly 25 years of experience representing clients in high-stakes, complex disputes across a wide range of industries.

Known for his ability to distill intricate legal issues into clear, persuasive arguments, Chris has appeared before the Texas Supreme Court and multiple U.S. Courts of Appeals, having argued more than 40 appeals across commercial and business litigation.

His practice has particular depth in financial services and complex commercial matters. He regularly advises trial teams on strategy, error preservation, and briefing critical motions, ensuring that cases are positioned for success at every stage of litigation.

Chris has secured significant victories for his clients in both state and federal courts, including recent wins in the Fifth Circuit and New York appellate courts. His successful arguments have shaped the law on issues ranging from FLSA collective actions and arbitration to banking disputes and the scope of federal maritime jurisdiction.

His dedication to the craft of appellate advocacy and his commitment to client service have earned Chris a reputation as a trusted advisor and effective advocate. His approach combines rigorous legal analysis with a practical understanding of the business and strategic interests at stake.

A recognized authority on appellate advocacy, Chris is a frequent speaker and author on appellate litigation, judicial qualification, and legal writing. He is regularly invited to present at leading industry conferences and bar association events, sharing insights on the latest developments in appellate law.
