Joel is an experienced trial lawyer that combines his unique perspective as an entrepreneur and lawyer to craft winning arguments.

He has successfully litigated numerous matters in excess of $100 million in dispute and bet-the-company cases in courts and before arbitration panels. With a particular focus on real estate and financial matters, including royalty and oil and gas accounting, Joel excels at turning complex subject matters into understandable and relatable concepts for judges and juries. In doing so, he is able to draw on a broad base of experience having started businesses in information technology services, retail, and real estate.

His success persuading judges and juries is recognized by his peers. He has been repeatedly recognized by Thomson Reuters Super Lawyers and The Best Lawyers in America for Business and Commercial Litigation.

REPRESENTATIVE EXPERIENCE

- In 2023, represented a production and exploration company along with Beck Redden Partner Geoff Gannaway that successfully resolved a long-running oil and gas accounting and development dispute following over two weeks of trial in Texas state court.
- In 2023, prevailed on a motion to dismiss in Texas state court, along with Beck Redden partner Matthew Whitley, on behalf of a prominent commercial developer whose development project was opposed by neighboring property owners.
- In 2022, prevailed on a motion for summary judgment, along with Beck Redden partner Jeff Golub in a federal lawsuit on behalf of a Fortune 500 wireless infrastructure company arising out of a municipality's unlawful restriction on the company's use of public rights of way.
- In 2021, prevailed on a motion for summary judgment limiting the scope of restrictive covenants in favor of property owners seeking to build on their properties.
- In 2018, along with Beck Redden Partner Fields Alexander prevailed in arbitration on behalf of a prominent Texas law firm in a dispute regarding entitlement to attorney's fees.
- In 2017, along with Beck Redden Partner Fields Alexander won a complete defense verdict in a breach of contract case following a trial in West Virginia federal court arising out of an alleged failure to drill oil wells on behalf of a subsidiary of a global exploration and production company.
- Additionally, Joel has represented owners and majority and minority general partners in real estate, partner, and financial disputes related to multifamily, retail, commercial, low-income housing tax credit, and triple net real estate projects. Joel has also represented numerous oil and gas exploration and production companies in a wide range of matters involving valuation of mineral assets, oil and gas accounting, royalty disputes, and oil and gas contract and tort claims.
